

Swiss Motor Racer to Exhibit Chevrolet Car

Louis Chevrolet, Swiss automobile racer and former pilot of Buick racing cars, will be among the several automobile drivers at the Indianapolis motor car show, March 24-29. Chevrolet will be in charge of the exhibit of Chevrolet six-cylinder cars, of which he is the designer. The motor of this car has attracted much attention at the other automobile shows.

There will be other famous race drivers at the Indianapolis show. Charley Merz will be around the Stutz booth. Johnny Aitken, who drove the chairman's car in the first Munsey Reliability tour, will help to show off the National trophies. Ray Harroun, who also drove in the first Munsey tour, will explain things at the Marmon booth.

There will be a number of other drivers who have seen service in automobile competitions assisting at the show.
